GLASSWARE CODING

Each manufacturer has special individual processes used to treat their glassware. The following is a guide to the symbols used at the foot of the page throughout the preceding section designating the process used.

LIBBEY® GLASSWARE – PAGES 3-31

+ DuraTuff®

A special thermal afterprocess for “pressed” glass. Performed only on the upper portion of pressed tumblers and stemware to increase their resistance to thermal and mechanical shock.

★ Heat-Treated

A secondary process on “blown” glass. After the glass is formed a special heating and rapid cooling process is performed on the upper portion to increase resistance to thermal and mechanical shock. Recommended for fast service cycle operations.

● Safedge® Rim Guarantee

If the rim of any glass covered by this guarantee chips it will be replaced or the price refunded when returned to the dealer (does not cover breakage).

■ Safedge® Rim and Foot Guarantee

If the rim or foot of any one-piece stemware item chips it will be replaced or the price refunded when returned to the dealer (does not cover breakage).

▲ Finedge®

Features a minimum bead on the edge. This finely rimmed glassware brings subtle beauty to any establishment.

✘ Sheer Rim/D.T.E™

Features a beadless edge which is first cracked-off then polished to produce a fine, yet durable edge. Guaranteed against breakage of the rim.

◆ Luigi Bormioli

Developed to provide a superior, resonant blown glass in a quality and purity rivaling that of lead crystal.

✦ SON.hyx Rim and Foot Guarantee

If the rim or foot chips it will be replaced when returned to the manufacturer (does not cover breakage).

✦ Hand Blown

Manufactured by hand, giving the glass unique individual characteristics.

ANCHOR® GLASSWARE – PAGES 32-41

■ Sure Guard™ Guarantee

Guarantees the entire foodservice line against chipping. If the rim of a tumbler or the foot or rim of a piece of stemware chips in normal use, it will be replaced or the price refunded when returned to the dealer (does not cover breakage).

+ Rim-Tempered

Heat is concentrated on the rim area, followed by a cooling process which allows for a stronger, more durable product.

ABBREVIATIONS FOR DIMENSIONS

- H represents Height
- T represents Top Diameter
- B represents Bottom Diameter
- D represents Maximum Diameter

CARDINAL GLASSWARE – PAGES 42-50

✦ Fully Tempered

Up to 5 times more resistant to breakage. Offers increased strength and safety for handlers, without the loss of style and elegance.

✦ Kwarx Advanced Material

Revolutionary material created specifically to allow sheer rim designs to obtain extreme strength against chipping, breakage, scratching, and is guaranteed for up to 2,000 industrial dishwashing cycles. Completely transparent, making it perfect for tasting quality glassware.

+ Rim-Tempered

Adds strength and durability to affordability in the Elemental offering.

SUGGESTED CHINA CARE

Avoid Thermal Shock: Taking china from cold chilled area and putting to use in oven or open heat could crack or warp china. Avoid chipping by taking care to remove one dish at a time from dishwasher. Save wear and tear on glaze by avoiding sliding dishes when stacking. Underside of non-glazed china foot will act like sand paper when sliding on to another plate. Proper quantities on hand allows for less wear and better rotation. Do not use metal scouring pads to remove stains or dried particles from china.

Avoiding Breakage: Do not stack cups one on top the other. Stack soiled dishes and clean dishes no more than 12 high. Are proper washing racks being used? Avoid stacking heavy weight china on top of light weight china. Use compartment racks where needed. Avoid carrying plates by hand or on arm to tables. Use separate bus boxes when bussing to clear table of china, glassware and flatware.

FLATWARE CORROSION, TARNISHING & BUILDUPS

Corrosion in flatware occurs when chlorides in food soils dissolve and attack silverplating and stainless steel, permanently damaging their surfaces. Corrosion can result from several factors – the use of improper containers and compounds used for cleaning and storage, dirty presoak solutions, extra-long presoak times, and incorrect washing and drying procedures. Water and cleaning solutions can break down the flatware's protective oxide layer, and extended exposure to moisture increases the risk of rust.

Tableware should never remain soiled overnight. Presoaking is recommended, after which it should be immediately washed in high temperatures – low temperatures or chlorine baths will attack silver and metal. To prevent corrosion and film build-up, flatware must be rinsed thoroughly and dried immediately after rinsing.

To keep flatware looking new, a regular de-tarnishing and burnishing schedule must be established. In silverplated flatware, surface discolorations can be caused by silver sulfide deposits. In stainless steel, buildup of foreign material such as food soils or hard water deposits can cause a black, blue, or grey discoloration.

GLASS JARS: HOW THEY DO & DON'T STACK UP

Environmentally speaking, glass food storage containers are one of the best options for both dry and wet foods. Not only can you avoid the waste of plastic bags or containers (not to mention Styrofoam or other earth unfriendly materials), but glass does not absorb odors and is dishwasher safe. The downside is their weight. Alone, glass containers are often hefty enough, but once you add food to them, you're adding considerable ounces or even pounds. When it comes to storage, this can be a problem. One easy way to avoid damage, is to never stack glass jars. The jars on the bottom of the stack can (and probably will, eventually) crack with the weight of the jars on top.

Water – never load frozen foods over the frypot.

Soap – clean, rinse and dry the pot extremely well.

Salt – never salt your food over the oil.

Food Particles – filter in a consistent manner.

Air & Light – keep frypots covered when not in use.

BUYING SHELVING

When buying shelving, consider what you will be storing on the shelves. Shelving intended for refrigerated storage should meet different requirements than shelving for dry storage. Carefully consider the weight of the items you intend to place on shelving. Are you storing items that would be easier and safer to store on dunnage racks?

HACCP (HAZARD ANALYSIS OF CRITICAL CONTROL POINTS)

HACCP is a systematic approach to controlling foodborne illness. A HACCP plan is created when you have put in place a plan that documents proper procedures, using forms to track performance and compliance of such procedures. In addition the process includes specific information about who is responsible for carrying out the plan. Managers and employees then have an up-to-date document that describes procedures to be followed to ensure safe food. Managers must use the document to record all safe measures in use, as well as to describe any changes they may have made. Any corrective actions taken must also be on file and in the plan as well. By following the seven basic principles of HACCP you are on your way to serving safer food.

SEVEN PRINCIPLES BEHIND HACCP

1. Hazard Analysis: Your first step is to determine the menu items most likely to cause illness and what could go wrong with them.

2. Determine Critical Control Points: Focus on how and where to make the food safe. Cooking, cooling, reheating and storing may be critical control points.

3. Set Critical Limits: Standardize your cooking temperatures, cooling times, reheating temperatures and times, storage practices, and any other safety concerns.

4. Develop Monitoring Procedures: Determine how often you should take temperature readings, test sanitizer strength and set up forms or charts to record the data collected.

5. Take Corrective Action: Describe what to do if cooking, cooling, reheating, sanitizing or storing is out of set safe limits.

6. Set Up Record Keeping System: Determine what needs to be recorded, where records are to be kept, who has access to the records and how long you will keep records on file.

7. Verify The System is Working: Set a specific day of the week, bi-weekly or monthly to review the record keeping to ensure the system is operating effectively.

RECEIVING:

Before accepting deliveries, make sure the temperature is within prescribed limits. Check both surface and interior temperatures: use an Instant Read or a Pocket Digital Thermometer for a quick interior check and an Infrared Thermometer for surface temperatures.

- Refrigerated foods – no higher than 41°F (5°C).
- Frozen foods – no higher than 0°F (-17.8°C) – use a Hand-held Thermocouple Thermometer with a Frozen Food Probe for quick, easy inspection of frozen food deliveries.
- Discard dry goods if there is any dampness, discoloration or if packaging is damaged.

Remember: Always refuse foods that show any signs of spoilage!

STORING:

All foods must be properly stored to minimize the risk of bacterial growth or contamination.

- Refrigerated foods must be stored at 41°F (5°C) or lower – use separate Refrigerator Thermometers for different food storage temperatures.
- Frozen foods need an air temperature below 0°F (-17.8°C) – use two Freezer Thermometers – one at the warmest point, the other at the coldest – to monitor air temperature.
- Dry stored food should be kept at 50°F (10°C) in a well-lit, ventilated room with a maximum of 60% relative humidity. Use a Temperature and Humidity Guide Wall Thermometer or Remote Sensor Thermometer to monitor storage room temperatures and humidity levels.

Remember: Check storage temperature at least twice each day!

PREPARING/COOKING:

Foodborne pathogens are killed by safe cooking temperatures. Use a Deep Fry Dial Thermometer to check deep frying oil temperatures to prevent cooking surface of foods too quickly. Use an Infrared Thermometer to ensure grills, fryers, and ovens maintain the right temperature for uniform cooking. Use Pocket Digitals, Thermocouple or Disposable Thermometers to ensure that 2011 FDA Guidelines for safe internal temperatures are consistently met.

- Poultry, stuffed meats and fish, wild game: 165°F (74°C) for at least 15 seconds.
- Pork, ground meat and inspected game meats, veal, lamb, mutton, eggs for immediate use: 155°F (68°C) for at least 15 seconds.

- Whole beef and pork roast: 145°F (63°C) for at least 3 minutes.

SERVING/HOLDING:

Hold foods out of the Danger Zone – hot foods above 140°F (60°C) and cold foods below 41°F (5°C) – to inhibit bacteria. Always use thermometers – a Hot/Cold Holding Cabinet Thermometer or Hand-Held Thermocouple Thermometer with an Air Probe – to check air temperatures in holding cabinets and under heat lamp warmers.

Remember: Built-in Thermostats may be misleading because they only measure air temperature immediately adjacent to sensors which may not be uniform throughout the holding area

COOLING:

After cooking, chill foods – especially meats – as rapidly as possible to minimize their time in the Danger Zone and limit bacterial growth. Chill from 140°F (60°C) to 70°F (21°C) within 2 hours, then from 70°F (21°C) to 41°F (5°C) within 4 hours. Use a Pocket Digital Thermometer, or a Hand-Held Thermocouple Thermometer with Interchangeable Probes.

Remember: The larger the surface area, the faster the food will cool – cut roasts into smaller portions and distribute liquids among several smaller pans to speed chill-time.

REHEATING:

Some bacteria survive cooking and multiply to dangerous levels during chill-down. Food must be reheated to an internal temperature of 165°F (74°C) to eliminate new pathogens. Use a Bi-Therm, Pocket Digital or Hand-Held Thermocouple Thermometer to ensure all foods are reheated adequately. Reheating kills pathogens, it won't eliminate toxins, such as Staphylococcus aureus, so remember these important rules:

- Never reheat food more than 2 days old
- Never add old foods to new
- Reheat foods only once – then discard
- Enforce strict personal hygiene standards

Remember: An Infrared Thermometer is ideal for quickly and inconspicuously checking surface temperatures in holding cabinets, on salad bars and steam tables.

HANDLING GUIDELINES

Maintain cold foods at or below 40°F. Maintain hot foods at or above 140°F.

Potentially hazardous hot food should be cooled rapidly. 140°F cooled to 70°F within 2 hours. 70°F cooled to 40°F within 4 hours. Using shallow pans with a product depth of no greater than 2 inches, the food should be placed in a refrigerator uncovered or loosely covered during the cooling process.

Never defrost food at room temperature. Use a refrigerator, continuously running cold water, a microwave or cook from frozen state. Frozen food that has been thawed should be cooked or otherwise processed before it may be refrozen.

Cook foods to the proper internal temperature. Use a metal probe thermometer to ensure food is cooked properly.

Wash your hands thoroughly with hot soapy water (before and after handling food) for a minimum of 20 seconds.

Avoid handling food when: you are ill, have a skin infection, or have cuts on the hands.

Never cross contaminate from raw to cooked products.

Wash, rinse and sanitize cutting boards and knives between every use.

Reheat leftovers to 165°F internal temperature or higher, stirring constantly to cook evenly or microwave to 195°F. Never reheat leftovers more than once.

Keep kitchens, dining areas and storage rooms free from insects and rodents. Store chemicals away from food.

CUTLERY CARE

Hand wash cutlery with mild detergent that is non caustic, then towel dry. Washing cutlery by placing in an automatic dishwasher is NOT suggested. This process allows metals to rub and dull the blade. Chemicals may stain and pit the blade. Wood handles eventually fade in color and start to split. Avoid soaking cutlery. Avoid using bleach or chlorinated chemicals. This tends to pit stain-free and high-carbon steel. Avoid soaking cutlery in stainless steel sinks, pots and pans or aluminum pots and pans. This may allow for the transfer of electrons (galvanic action) from one metal to another, causing pitting. Remove cutlery from condiments when kept in aluminum or stainless steel pans.

BASIC KNIVES & THEIR USES

Paring Knife

Four styles of paring knives are most common...curved, spear, sharp and clip point. Curved or Sharp paring knives may be used for finely sliced pepper rings, slivered olives and cherries. A cook's paring or speared point knife can be used to remove corn from the cob, break up heads of lettuce or cabbage, peel fruit and vegetables, cut beans, etc. A clip point knife is used for eyeing potatoes, seeding, peeling and pitting.

Utility Knife

Sharp 6" utility knife is most efficient for slicing non solid fruits and vegetables, such as tomatoes or squash. For acid fruits a stainless steel blade is preferred. Useful for cutting melon rings, heads of lettuce into wedges or preparing cabbage.

Boning Knife

Blades vary in length from 4" to 8". Cooks simplify carving and get extra servings by boning out a roast when it is partially cooked. For boning roasts, whole hams, lamb legs, veal legs and filleting fish, a narrow blade is the best.

Butcher, Cimeter Steak Knife & Cleaver

For odd jobs in the kitchen, butcher and cimeter steak knives can be used for dicing salt pork, cubing cold meats, cutting steaks or trimming raw meat. The cleaver is used for opening lobsters, cutting poultry, etc.

Cook's Knife

Blade lengths of 8" to 12". Cook's knife has more uses than any other knife in a kitchen. Blade is wider at the handle and tapers to the point. Deep choil protects knuckles when dicing or mincing celery, onions, nuts, meats, parsley, peppers, etc.

Slicers & Carvers

Most important knife in this category is the roast beef slicer. It is used to carve rounds, boneless roasts, boiled briskets, pot roasts and standing rib roasts. The roast beef slicer has a wider blade and tends to have a more stiff, straight edge than serrated edge blades.

FOOD EQUIPMENT TIPS

The equipment in your kitchen should meet industry and regulatory standards. The following are some standard NSF requirements for food prep and storage equipment.

- Food Contact and food-splash surfaces must be easy to reach, easy to clean, nontoxic, non-absorbent, corrosion resistant, non-reactive to food or cleaning and should not leave a color, odor or taste to food.
- Should be rounded with tightly sealed edges and corners.
- Should be designed with solid and liquid waste traps that are easy to remove.

CONSIDER REPLACING ITEMS IF:

- They are worn out
- They no longer meet local health codes
- They make it more difficult to adhere to your operation's HACCP plan

- Angled, cast aluminum legs with no-slip feet provide stable cutting platform
- Manual locking pin keeps pusher block safely in place until operator releases for cutting

USE AND CARE OF ALUMINUM

Don't let acidic or salty foods remain in aluminum cookware for long periods of time – it can cause pitting and discoloration. Use cooking tools made of wood, plastic or smooth-edged metal. Prolong the original shape of your aluminum cookware by allowing it to cool before washing or soaking – this will help prevent warping. Wash and dry after each use to preserve appearance.

PORTION CONTROL

The key to profit control is portion control. Using a sandwich shop/deli as an example, if an employee serves ¼ ounce overweight with each serving of sandwich meat and 400 customers are served in a day, 6¼ pounds of additional food has been used. If the product cost $1.50 per pound, the loss over the year would be $3,420!. Weigh all ingredients in a recipe to ensure accurate measurements.

WOK COOKING

Why use a stir-fry pan or wok? When stir-frying meats and vegetables, the bite-sized ingredients are stirred constantly and quickly over high heat in a small amount of oil. Stir-frying is an ideal way to preserve the color, flavors and textures of food, as well maintain their nutritional value. Using the proper cookware for stir-fry will ensure results your customers will devour. Because stir-fry pans and woks are slope sided and deep, they require less oil than a saute pan or skillet. Stir-fry pans and woks constructed of aluminum are the best choice because aluminum is an excellent conductor of heat. Because of this, heat spreads quickly and evenly across the bottom and up the sides, completely surrounding the food being cooked.

PIZZA PANS

Aluminum pizza pans are available in several different types of aluminum, but it's best to buy high quality hard-anodized pans. Another key feature to look for is holes in the pan. This allows the crust to become crispy as it cooks. Aluminum pizza pans work best with hand-tossed and thin crusts. A pizza screen allows air to circulate for a more evenly baked and crispy crust. Deep-dish pizza pans have deep sides, ranging from one to two inches deep. These pans are best suited for making Chicago-style pizza.

TEXTILE TIPS

A well-dressed employee sends a message to your customers that you care about their entire dining experience. Maintain a stock of back-up aprons, jackets, shirts, etc. If a food handling mishap occurs your employees will always look fresh and clean. Aprons made of a poly-cotton blend are designed for easy care with less shrinkage, wrinkling and fading. Train employees to properly wash their hands, and never to use their aprons or wiping cloths to dry their hands or face! Protective flame retardant mitts and pot holders can be used for more than just pulling hot foods out of the oven. Use while deep frying, candy making, moving foods from freezer to oven and handling dry ice – wherever you need protection from extreme temperatures!

COMMERCIAL KITCHEN LIGHTING

The right lighting is absolutely key for commercial kitchens, which must meet rigorous standards of cleanliness, as well as cooking appealing foods. Besides providing a clear view of the food being cooked, good lighting also helps prevent injuries, such as cuts and burns. Most commercial kitchen lighting relies on large fluorescent fixtures for general light, and track lighting for task areas. In many restaurant kitchens, these are utilitarian fixtures, but in some restaurants part of the experience is being able to see the chefs at work. If the kitchen is visible to the guests, kitchen light fixtures should be in keeping with the overall decor of the establishment.
